“ My beautiful baby sister. I am broken. I don't understand any of this. So many good times we shared. I will treasure each memory as my mind struggles to accept you are no longer here. I always looked forward to hearing of the new projects you were working on. The places you have been. You were so talented. Always planning and sewing something! I am thinking of the laughs in your old apartment. My "dance" lessons. You were so funny and patient. My Isis. I remember catching the L train for the first time to West Philadelphia for dance class when we were YOUNG children. I was the oldest, but I was terrified! Not you! You were fearless. Nothing would stop you from reaching your goals. for over 4 decades I have loved you, Linda, Salimah, Makeya, Baheejah, and Aquilah as my family. Mother Aquilah: I am here. This pain is burning. Grief is love with nowhere to go. NEVER in my life has there been a time I called on you and you didn't come right away. My father would be devastated if he was here. Find your way to him. Save me some pancakes. I will be worthy to see you again. Always, your big sis, Manda. (LV 13th street)
